MILITARY TIMEPIECE EXHIBITION

World War II Hamilton 37500 Cockpit Clock.

2025 Exhibit - Military Timepieces

Military watches have played a crucial role in armed forces worldwide, providing precise timekeeping essential for coordinated operations. Designed with durability, legibility, and accuracy in mind, many of these watches have inspired innovations later adopted in civilian timepieces.

For collectors, each watch tells a story, reflecting the technological progress of its era and the specific needs of military personnel. Our exhibit showcases examples used by military personnel utilized on land, at sea, and in the air. Collectors are captivated by the stories these watches narrate, from their roles in pivotal wartime missions to their contributions to advancements in horology.

French Baker's Clock
Auction Item

This French Clock will be at the live auction Friday, March 7th, 2025, For details see Bob Schmitt. Often referred to as a French Baker's Clock. Attractive abalone mother-of-pearl inlay and perfect white dial with original hands.

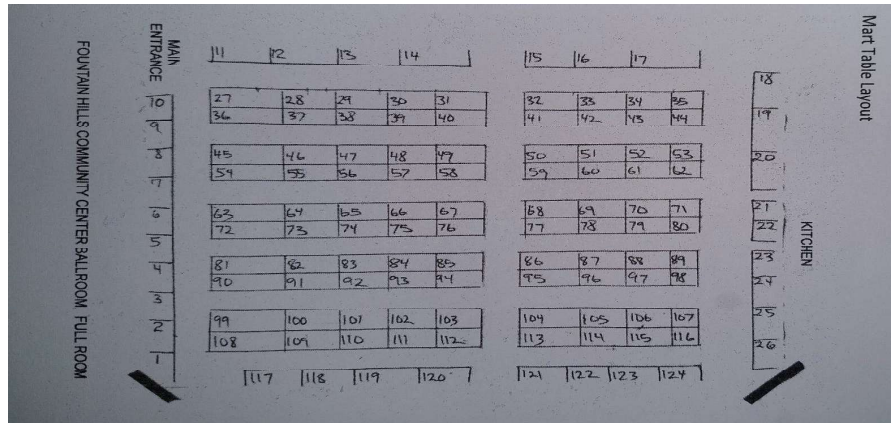

The Antikythera Mechanism (c. 100 BC) The mechanism consists of a complex system of 30 wheels and plates with inscriptions relating to signs of the zodiac, months, eclipses, and Panhellenic games. The study of the fragments suggests that this was a kind of astrolabe. See the video schedule to learn about this marvel of the ancients
